TEACHING INTERESTS

Courses on an array of topics concerning contemporary Italy. Contemporary Italian Society and Politics, Popular Italian Culture, Italian Mafia, Urban Studies, Pasolini, Food and Culture, Youth Cultures. I have taught courses in general anthropology and sociology including ecological anthropology, anthropology of Europe, sociology of the family, sociology of labor. I have taught courses under the heading of Italian Civilization with an interdisciplinary perspective.

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

I continue my research on the Italian territory. I published a volume on the Roman periphery in 2021, and completed another volume on the landscapes of Italian food in 2022. I am now undertaking research for a new book on Italian postwar housing policies. As part of this research I have created a project called Hidden Pathways (sentierinascosti.org) where I document the experience of youth in the peripheral districts of major Italian cities.
